New York, New York – Former New York Giants safety Kamrin Moore has been cleared of domestic violence charges by a Union County, New Jersey grand jury and has moved for reinstatement by the NFL.

“We have continually asserted Kamrin’s innocence from the outset of this ordeal and believed that it was only a matter of time before he would be vindicated of these fabricated charges through the course of due process. I’m thankful for our legal team of David Bahuriak, James Abate and Alex Spiro who have worked tirelessly to pursue justice and truth in this matter. Kamrin now looks forward to resuming his NFL career,” stated MBK Sports President and Agent Eugene Lee.

Kamrin Moore’s defense attorney David Bahuriak affirmed, “Our defense team thoroughly investigated and vetted these allegations, and ultimately concluded that the charges were false. We are thankful that the prosecution and the grand jury followed the evidence and cleared an innocent man. Dismissal of all charges in this case is proof that sometimes the system does work. We are honored to clear Kamrin’s name and get him back to professional football as soon as possible.”

Kamrin Moore is entering his 2nd NFL season after being drafted by the New Orleans Saints in the 6th Round of the 2018 NFL Draft. Prior to entering the NFL, Mr. Moore enjoyed a standout career at Boston College where he was a three-year starter and voted team captain before his senior season.
